

Your New Account Suffixes

Sometimes you need to use the suffix that designates your account type along with your account number—especially if you use phone banking, online banking or mobile banking.

Remember: account/member numbers won't change as part of our upgrade, but suffixes will.

Do you have more than one account of the same type?

The additional suffixes will be the next number in the account type category. For example, if you now have a checking account that has an S10 suffix, the new suffix is 100, as shown above. If you have a second checking account with an S10.1 suffix, the new suffix is 101.
